1. What happens if my headphones fall out of my ears while in the water?

The Interval+ is 100% waterproof and can be exposed or submerged in water for an unlimited amount of time. If the headphones come out of your ears and fall into the water, simply shake or blow off any water that remains in the earplug to ensure the best sound experience.

away from the ears when turning on the audio player. If the volume level is not zero when the audio player is turned on, it may cause ear injury due to a sudden burst of volume. The volume should be slowly increased with an audio track playing to set the speaker volume to comfortable output levels prior to positioning the headphones next to the ears. Hearing experts advise against continuously loud and extended play. If you experience ringing in your ears, reduce volume or discontinue use.

It can be potentially dangerous to use headphones while engaging in activities that require your full attention. You should exercise extreme caution or discontinue use in potentially hazardous situations. Do not use the headphones while driving, cycling, or operating any motorized vehicle. It may create a traffic hazard and is illegal in some areas. Those users that elect to utilize this system at, or near, the water's surface, must maintain safety awareness of moving water crafts.

WARNING: Ear tips should always be used. WARNING: Contains small parts which may be a choking hazard. Not suitable for children under 3 years old. WARNING: This product contains magnetic material.
